Points of Interest

- In school year 2002-03, a total of 23,551 students, or 2.6 percent of the student population, were reported to be retained in grades 1 through 12 in Massachusetts public schools.
- There was a major change in the retention data collection tools from an aggregate collection through the Year-End School Indicator Report (YESIR) in prior years to a student-level collection through the Student Information Management System (SIMS) in school year 2002-03.
- A student was considered to be retained in grade for school year 2002-03 if the grade in which the student was enrolled during the October 1, 2002 collection was the same grade in which the student was enrolled during the October 1, 2001 submission.
- The state in grade retention rate increased from 2.0 percent in 1994-95 to 2.6 percent in 2002-03.
- The rate of males retained has consistently remained higher than the proportion of females retained.
- Each group of minority students, except students identified as Asian, exceeded the state retention rate of 2.6 percent, some reaching as high as almost 6 percent retained.

Students who are retained in grade are repeating the grade in which they were enrolled the prior school year.

Introduction

Researching the characteristics of grade retention in Massachusetts is essential when attempting to establish strategies and programs geared toward promoting successful student attainment. Massachusetts defines retention as students in grades one through twelve who are repeating the grade in which they were enrolled the prior school year.

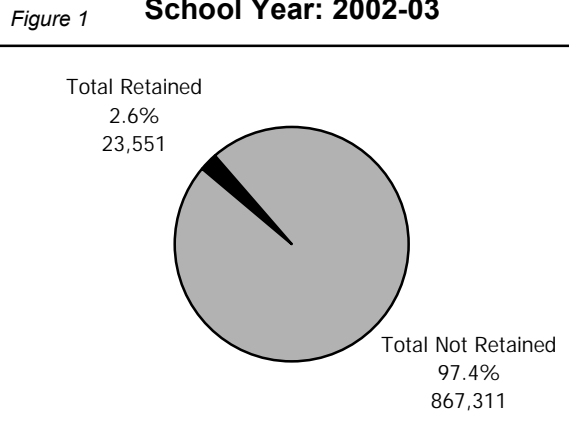

This report is an analysis of students retained for school year 2002-03 and concentrates on the following major areas. First, statewide total retentions, rates of students retained, and longitudinal retention trends from school year 1994-95 through school year 2002-03 are detailed in Section 1. Section 2 explores statewide retention statistics by race/ethnicity, describes male and female retention rates, and explains longitudinal gender trends. Section 3 illustrates retention statistics by grade level and race/ethnicity and highlights areas representing the majority of the students retained. Next, the findings on students who have repeated a grade during the selected school year are summarized in Section 4. In addition, the methodology section details the population represented in this analysis, the data sources, definitions, and limitations to the analysis. This report concludes with the attached appendices that provide retention data by district by race/ethnicity, and by gender for school year 2002-03 and by grade for 2000-01, 2001-02, and 2002-03.

Section 1: Statewide Totals

In the state of Massachusetts for school year 2002-03 a total of 23,551 students, or 2.6 percent of the student population, were reported to be retained in grade.

Section 1: Longitudinal Analysis

Table 1 details the total number of students enrolled in the state in grades 1 through 12, retained in grade, and the state retention rate for school years 1994-95 through 2002-03 (also see Figure 2). There was an overall increase in the rate of students retained from school year 1994-95 to school year 2002-03

	1995	1996	1998*	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003

Retention Rate	2.0%	2.1%	2.1%	2.3%	2.6%	2.5%	2.5%	2.6%

Section 2: Retention by Race/Ethnicity and Gender

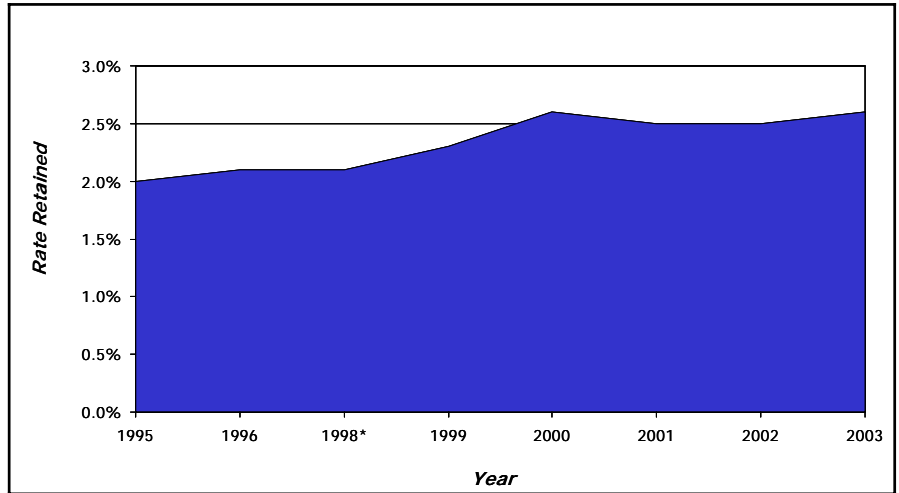

Table 2 details enrollment and retention counts and rates by race/ethnicity for students in school year 2002-03.

In comparison to the state retention rate of 2.6 percent, 5.8 percent of all Hispanic students and 5.6 percent of all African American students were retained during school year 2002-03. Notably, students indicated to be White were reported to have a lower retention rate, 1.8 percent, than the state average of 2.6 percent.

Figure 3 details the grade retention rate by gender from school year 1998-99 to school year 2002-03. The figure reveals that males have been retained in grade at consistently higher rates than females.

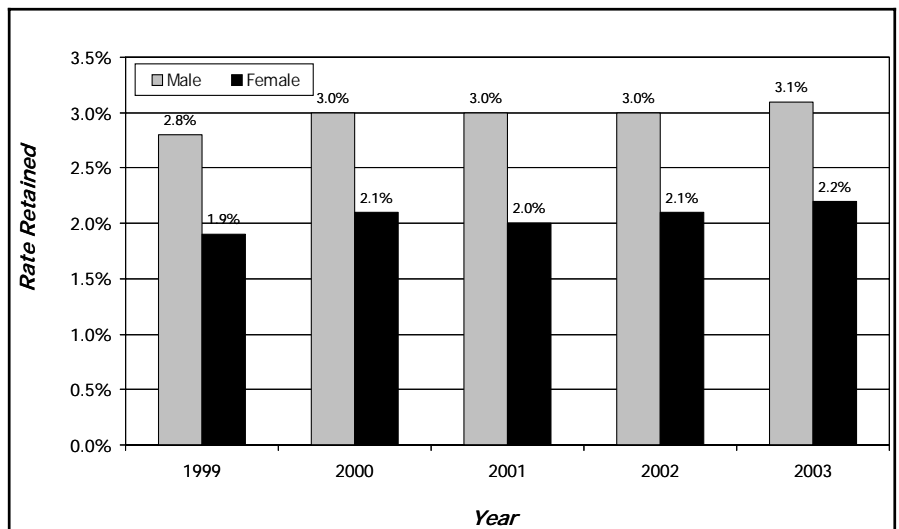

There was an increase in male retention rates between school year 2001-02 and school year 2002-03 with a growth from 3.0 to 3.1 percent. Similarly, the female retention rates rose between the same years, from 2.1 to 2.2 percent.

Section 3: Retention by Grade Level

Retention rates for individual grade levels ranged from 0.7 to 8.5 percent (see Table 3). Grades 9, 10, 1 and 11 accounted for over 60 percent of all the retentions. This composition is consistent with trends from the prior two years as noted in Figure 4.

As seen in Figure 4, retention rates in the earlier grades in school year 2002-03 began at 4.1 percent retained in the first grade and then declined until a slight increase became evident in sixth and seventh grades.

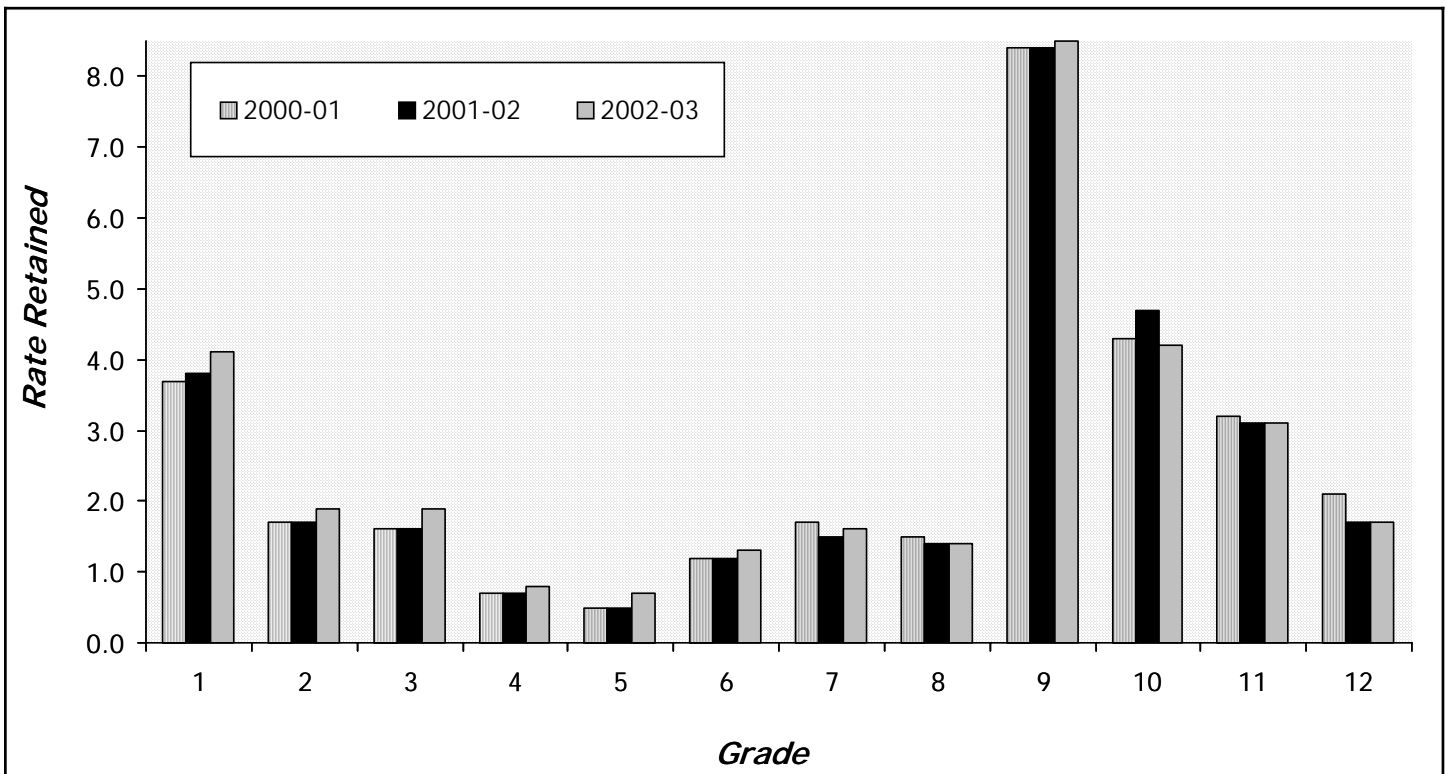

Retention rates peaked in the ninth grade at 8.5 percent, constituting 29 percent of all the retentions in the state.

Section 3: Retention by Grade Level

Table 4 and Figure 5 examine retention rates within grade levels according to race. Overall, African American and Hispanic students were reported to be retained at a much higher rate than all other race categories, particularly in the ninth and tenth grades.

African American Students

African American students were retained at a higher rate than the state average in all grades. Particularly, 16.6 percent of African American students who were enrolled in the ninth grade were retained versus the state rate of 8.5 percent of ninth graders retained.

Asian Students

Students who were reported to be Asian had a lower retention rate than the state rate in the younger grades and their rates were equal to the state retention rates in eighth and ninth grades. However,

Asian students in the eleventh and twelfth grades were retained at slightly higher rates than the state rates at the same grades.

Hispanic Students

Similar to African American students, Hispanic students were retained at a higher rate than the state average throughout all grades. Most notable, 17.4 percent of Hispanic students enrolled in the ninth grade and 9.0 percent of Hispanic students enrolled in the tenth grade were retained whereas the state rate was 8.5 percent and 4.2 percent, respectively.

Native American Students

Overall, the rate of Native Americans retained in grade remained relatively consistent with the state's rates with the exception of third, seventh, and ninth grades where the rates were significantly higher.

White Students

Students indicated to be White were reported to be retained at a lower rate than any other race at most grade levels. Retention rates for White students peaked in the ninth grade at 5.9 percent.

Section 4: Summary of Findings

This report offers a preliminary but valuable resource for informed policy decision-making by exploring grade retention in Massachusetts public schools for school year 2002-03.

First, Section 1 established that the statewide trend of students retained in grade has remained steady over the last couple of years at a 2.5 percent retention rate but increased in school year 2002-03 to 2.6 percent retained.

Second, Section 2 detailed that students of particular races/ethnicities were more likely to be retained than other race/ethnicities.

African American students and Hispanic students each had a significantly higher retention rate than the state rate of 2.6 percent. Also, males had a consistently higher retention rate than females. Out of all the male students in the state, 3.1 percent were retained, whereas 2.2 percent of all females were retained in school year 2002-03.

Section 3 indicated differences in retention by grade levels. As previously demonstrated, ninth graders, tenth graders, and first graders respectively had the highest rate of retentions for school year 2002-03. Overall, the highest rate of students retained were those in the ninth grade at 8.5 percent. This section also reviewed retention rates for a cross-section of race/ethnicity and grade level. African American and Hispanic students in the 9th grade had a much higher retention rate than any other race/grade combination.

Future research into the reasons for retention is made possible through the improvements in the Student Information Management System (SIMS) data collection and will assist in understanding the dynamics of future retention issues and future policy design.

Section 5: Methodology

Population

This report represents all students enrolled in first grade through twelfth grade indicated to be retained in grade as reported by public school districts in Massachusetts for school years 1994-95 through 2002-03.

Data Source

In the past, the Department of Education required that all public school districts (including charter schools, regional vocational technical schools) in Massachusetts report the number of students retained within their district by race/ethnicity, gender, and grade. This data was collected in the aggregate on the Year-End School Indicator Report (YESIR). However, school year 2002-03 marked the first time this data was collected through SIMS.

Enrollment data used to calculate rates was as of October 1st of each year. Prior to school year 2001-02, enrollment data was collected in the aggregate by each district through the Individual School Report (ISR). School year 2001-02 was the first year enrollment was based on a student-level collection SIMS.

Data Definitions

The number of students retained represents students who were reported to have repeated the same grade as the prior school year. The retention rate is reflective of the number of students retained divided by the grades one through twelve enrollment.

For instance, the total number of students who were reported to be in the same grade during the October 1, 2002 SIMS submission as in the October 1, 2001 submission was then divided by the total year enrollment as of October 1, 2002.

Limitations

There were certain limitations presented in this analysis of retention trends. First, there may have been inconsistencies in how districts interpreted the instructions. Without an auditing process, it was difficult to determine the impact. Second, because the retention data prior to school year 2002-03 were collected in the aggregate form, the Department of Education was not able to follow students over time or analyze in conjunction with other data (e.g. assessment results, drop out status). Finally, school year 2002-03 represented the first retention collection through SIMS. This evolution from an aggregate collection to a student-level collection hindered longitudinal analyses since the collection tools differed so greatly. Despite these limitations, the retention report does contain a significant amount of information descriptively analyzed and interpreted for policy review.
