FAMILY, SCHOOL, AND COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP FUNDAMENTALS

June 2012

The Massachusetts Family, School, and Community Partnership Fundamentals (Fundamentals) are the result of a multi-year collaborative process in defining guidelines and research-based practices for the engagement of families, schools, and communities in supporting equitable learning opportunities for students. This initiative was coordinated by the Parent and Community Education and Involvement (PCEI) Advisory Council of the Massachusetts Board of Elementary and Secondary Education Board (Board). It incorporates the voices, passion, shared purpose and collaboration of students, parents, families, educators, administrators, researchers, additional Board advisory councils, and community organization representatives.

Massachusetts is a leader in setting and supporting high expectations for students, educators, and schools. With the development of these Fundamentals, Massachusetts has a new tool to support high expectations for family, school, and community partnerships with the goal that coordinated, comprehensive, and systemic supports create opportunities for all students to achieve academic proficiency and beyond.

The Fundamentals acknowledge the important, necessary, and valuable role played by each student’s family, community, and school in preparing students for success in the 21st century. Families, educators, and community members share both the responsibilities and the opportunities to promote learning and skill-building, varied educational experience, relationship-building, and enhancement of the health and well-being of all children and youth within each community.

The federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act defines family engagement1 as: [T]he participation of parents [family] in regular, two-way, and meaningful communication involving student academic learning and other school activities, including ensuring that:

- Parents [family] play an integral role in assisting their child’s learning;
- Parents [family] are encouraged to be actively involved in their child’s education at school; and
- Parents [family] are full partners in their child’s education and are included, as appropriate, in decision-making and on advisory committees to assist in the education of their child [Title 1, Section 9101(32), ESEA].

According to the National Family, School, and Community Engagement Working Group Recommendations for Federal Policy: June 2009, family engagement is:

- A shared responsibility where schools and community organizations commit to engaging families in meaningful and culturally respectful ways and where families actively support their children’s learning and development;
- Continuous across a student’s life, beginning in infancy and extending through college and career preparation programs; and
- Carried out everywhere that children learn, including homes, early childhood education programs, schools, after-school programs, faith-based institutions, playgrounds, and community settings.3

1 Federal law uses the term “parent involvement.” In keeping with current terminology and trends, “family engagement” is used throughout this document.
The Fundamentals recognize that family and community engagement involves everything parents and families do to support their children’s learning at home and in the community. The Fundamentals support the creation of pathways to partnerships that honor the dynamic, multiple, and complementary ways children learn and grow. They apply to all stages of a child’s educational career because parent and family support at every age significantly impacts a child’s educational outcomes.

There are many ways that parents and families support their children’s learning and development. To name a few, they provide home environments conducive to learning, guide children through complex school systems, advocate when problems arise, and collaborate with educators and community groups to achieve equitable learning opportunities for all students. Yet some families may need additional support to fully realize this potential. When schools and communities build on family strengths and knowledge and when parents participate in school activities and decision-making about their children’s education, children achieve at higher levels. When parents are involved in education, children do better in school and schools improve.4

Each Fundamental is organized along a continuum of Levels of Development and Implementation for specific Indicators which reflect the responsibilities, opportunities, and expectations of families, schools, school districts, and communities in partnering together to support student performance and academic achievement. The Fundamentals serve as an invitation and expectation for active participation and collaboration of all stakeholders in self-assessment and action-planning on behalf of all students. The Fundamentals are inclusive of all families and the vast range of skills, talents, dynamics, resources, and stories they contribute to this partnership, in coordination with community and school-based contributions.

The Massachusetts Family, School, and Community Partnership Fundamentals are:

Fundamental 1: Welcoming All Stakeholders
Fundamental 2: Communicating Effectively
Fundamental 3: Supporting the Success of Children and Youth
Fundamental 4: Advocating for Each Child and Youth
Fundamental 5: Sharing Power and Responsibility
Fundamental 6: Partnering with the Community

Massachusetts Family, School, and Community Partnership Fundamentals

Fundamental 1: Welcoming All Stakeholders

Schools create and ensure a welcoming culture and environment for all families, children and youth, school staff, and community members. Stakeholders are valued and connected to each other in support of high academic expectations, achievement, and healthy development.

| A. Using multiple communication paths<sup>1</sup>                         | School staff informs students and families of upcoming events using a variety of media and communication pathways, including regular print and electronic notices, person-to-person, phone messages, in the languages used by families and the community. As issues arise, a team of administrators, teachers, families, community members, and students, when appropriate, strategically look at developing trends, assessing the need for a school-wide, community supported response/solution. | School staff collaborates with all families, the school council, parent groups, and family engagement staff/team to develop connections with families through multiple two-way communication tools in multiple languages. The school has a process for outreach to all school families and students, keeping them informed, when appropriate, of any pertinent changes, developing concerns and/or possible solutions in the school community. | Families, students, communities, and school staff communicate in interactive ways, both formally and informally, in language that the families and students can understand, using a range of interpersonal and community strategies, technology and media. The principal meets regularly with the school council, parent, and student government/leadership groups, and keeps them informed of current school issues, concerns, and solutions. | □ Level 3: Mastering

| B. Surveying families, students and community members to identify issues and concerns | The school conducts a family and student school climate survey that is translated into multiple languages and is implemented in multiple ways. It has a high return rate and the survey results are shared and discussed with parents and students, posted at the school, and on the school and district websites. Survey data are collected annually and results are compared from year to year to assess progress. Results inform the development of family and student engagement programs and activities. | Survey results are reflected in the School Improvement Plan and are used to guide the development of the student engagement plan, family engagement programs, and other school activities. | □ Level 3: Mastering

| C. Providing access to school administration                               | The principal and other school administrators are welcoming and available for brief conversations regarding issues and concerns, and to meet with the school council or families by appointment at times that are convenient for families. The principal and other school administrators have an open-door policy for families and share information about school-wide issues at school council meetings, with opportunities for individual follow-up discussion by appointment. | The principal and other school administrators’ open-door policy extends equitably across the school community. They meet regularly with families in small groups, or one-on-one as needed, in school, and in different neighborhoods. | □ Level 3: Mastering

1. The Parent and Student Participation principle of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) reinforces the belief that the education of children with disabilities is made more effective by strengthening the role of parents in the special education process. IDEA requires that parents and legal guardians of children with disabilities and students, as appropriate, participate in every step of the process. Parent involvement includes but is not limited to: equal partnership in the decision-making process; the right to participate in all special education planning and decision-making activities about their child’s special education (e.g., the development of an individual education plan or IEP); the right to give consent for activities such as evaluations, placement, and changes in placement; the right to receive prior written notice each time the school proposes to take (or refuses to take) certain actions; and the release of information to others. Detailed information is available at www.doe.mass.edu/sped/parents.html and http://idea.ed.gov/explore/home.
Massachusetts Family, School, and Community Partnership Fundamentals

Fundamental 4: Advocating for Each Child and Youth

Families, schools, and community respect and value the uniqueness of each child and youth and are empowered to advocate for all students to ensure that they are treated equitably and have access to high quality learning opportunities.

Levels of Implementation build on each other. Practices at Initiating and Progressing continue at Mastering.
Families and parents are used interchangeably to refer to adults who are responsible for a student.

Families from diverse neighborhoods and backgrounds and diverse families include families from all races, ethnicities, family structures, religions, and socioeconomic status, as well as families with varying physical and mental abilities and families without permanent homes.

Parent group refers to an organization which represents families and parents of students who attend the school, such as Parent Teacher Association or Parent Teacher Organizations, Title I Parent Advisory Council, Special Education Parent Advisory Council, English Language Learners Parent Advisory Council, etc.

School council is the advisory group at every public school required by Massachusetts education law, consisting of parents, school, staff, representatives from community groups, and, in high schools, students. School councils are led by the principal as co-chair and whose functions are to develop school improvement plans and participate in budgetary, curricular and policy decision making.

School staff is inclusive of all adults employed in a school, including educators, administrators, counselors, school nurses, administrative support personnel, cafeteria workers, custodial staff, etc.

Stakeholders refers to groups of people interested in education, including but not limited to students, families, educators, school administrators, elected officials, community leaders, faith-based organizations, health care providers, businesses, and other community service providers.

Supporting children’s learning at home and school refers to the ways families and educators can partner together to reinforce and enhance what children are learning. Multiple ways of learning and use of universal design (environments, activities and products accessible to all) are included in the strategies used by families and educators.
